

Tips for Reading at Home with Your Child

1. Make it a routine: Create a special time each day where you and your child sit down and enjoy a book together. Often parents find it to be most convenient at night right before bed because it is an effective way to settle down and relax before bedtime, but it is important to find a routine that works best for you.
2. Preview the book ahead of time: Before purchasing or reading aloud a book to your child, read the book to ensure it is appropriate for your child and would be interesting to him or her. In addition, think about what conversations could springboard off of it.
3. Discuss the book: As you read the book, stop and talk about the pictures, model thinking strategies, make observations, ask your child questions, and encourage them to make predictions.
4. Model appropriate fluency and expression: When you are reading to your child, model how you would want them to read the story: Clearly, well-paced, and with appropriate expression.
5. Make it fun: Bring enthusiasm and excitement to each book. Choose books with funny words, characters, or plots that are high-interest for your child. Try reading in a fort with a flashlight. Another option is to include the family pet or a sibling in the read aloud.
6. Incorporate a variety of genres, topics, and text types: Invite your child's friends to give their favorite book to your child for their birthday gift. Another way to access a variety of texts is to check out your local public library, yard sales, local used book stores, and the school's book fair for non-fiction and fiction books, magazines, and articles.
7. Model your own love of reading: Let your child see you reading for both enjoyment and when you are trying to learn something. Take them to a bookstore like Barnes and Noble to look for books for yourself and for them.
8. Listen to audiobooks: If you have a busy schedule and spend a good amount of time in the car with your child, play audiobooks! There are so many benefits to these!
9. Keep books with you: Keep a bag of books with you when you are running errands so you can read to your child instead of
